National Severe Weather Warning Service

Chief Forecasters Assessment
Showers are ganging up across Northern Ireland at present. Some heavy ones with localised hail are expected for a few hours, leading to quite a lot of surface water in places, which will subsequently freeze, away from the north coastal strip.

The Met Office have issued a Yellow Warning of Ice

Valid from 01:00 on Fri, 07th Dec 2012 until 10:00 on Fri, 07th Dec 2012

Heavy showers will continue to affect parts Northern Ireland for the rest of Thursday evening, becoming more isolated beyond midnight. This will allow temperatures to fall rapidly again, with icy stretches forming on untreated surfaces.

The public should be aware of the possibility of difficult travel conditions as a result.
